IRONTON, MISSOURI.

From Mr. Hilburn.

Dear Brother Ake—I think, some times, in your somewhat desultory fire against prohibition, you permit yourself to go somewhat beyond the bounds of good logic, to say the least. In a recent number you referred in a mild manner to the silence of some one who had been an advocate of the dry principle, and referred in a somewhat vague way to his fall into temptation. And then you extol temptation as a strengthening cordial, saying that it is "God's way," or words to that effect.

I wanted to write you at the time but the Red River was keeping me too busy, but more of that later.

It may be true, Bro. Ake, that the tree growing in the open, with no shelter from the storms, will be stronger and tougher, but it is also full of knots and, often, wind-shakes. All the beautiful plants and flowers grow better when separated from noxious weeds. If temptation is a divine institution we ought to raise our daughters in the light district, and our sons in saloons and gambling houses, but one gentle Nazarene taught his followers to pray, "Lead us not into temptation." "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation." "Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted of evil, neither tempteth He any man." Jas. 1-13.

Two weeks ago to-day Red River broke her levees at Garland City and near the Cotton Belt Railroad, and in a very short time had cut under the track, stopping traffic for about two days until the place could be bridged. Your correspondent was on duty all night Saturday night, and walked out a hundred yards or more on the dry levee after day light Sunday morning, and at 8:30 the break came. The 800 acre plantation of J. C. Russell suffered great damage. Houses and sand drifts and tenant houses washed into indescribable shapes, or undermined and lowered into the red muddy water; for Red River is surely red when at flood tide. There are many curious stories of the flood, but your correspondent heard of only one life being lost. There are four miles of bottom on this, the east side of the river, and many people trudged over the Cotton Belt Railroad to the hills. Your correspondent used his motor car hauling out refugees the better part of one night, while the water was pouring through the swiftly widening crevice. One house was undermined and went straight down into the ground until only a part of the roof was above water. Several houses were broken up and carried in pieces to the railroad trestles where they had to be demolished and worked through or over, to relieve the pressure. The tenants were mostly negroes and lost all they had, household goods, as well as crops.

Travelers Protest Rail Rate Increase.

(From The St. Louis Republic.)
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 18.—When the railroad rate increase hearing was held before the Public Service Commission to-day R. A. Knapp of Ironton, chairman of the United Commercial Travelers of Missouri, filed a protest against an increase in the passenger and baggage rates in Missouri.

He said that under present conditions and the service the U. C. T. objects to the increased rates and asserted that the railroads are charging for local service at the rate of full mile for fractions. He said if a traveling man makes all the stops on the main line of the Iron Mountain between Poplar Bluff and St. Louis he pays in local fares for 33 miles more than the actual mileage because of the fractions, for which full miles are collected.

Here is the protest filed by Knapp, in part:

More than this, most of the traveling men are paying double fare. The service has been decreased to such an extent that a traveling man has to double back from one town to another, in order to cover his territory. Thus, if the service is not bettered at least 99 per cent the increase in the rate per mile would work a great hardship.

We also seriously object to the number of passes that are being used in the passenger service that the railroad claim is so unprofitable. We ask the Public Service Commission to ascertain the number of passes carried on passenger trains, the miles traveled by the holders of these passes and then to figure these passes in at the mileage rate of the tickets that would have been purchased.

We believe that if the pass system were done away with, and the railroads managed on a strictly business basis, it would not be necessary to ask for an increase in passenger rates.

As to the excess baggage rate, this matter was taken up once before, and a satisfactory understanding reached as to the mileage which is carried. We asked for at that time. Why now?

And before an increase is ever granted we ask you to secure from the railroads the amount of free baggage carried, and figure the equivalent in dollars and cents of the amount of free goods that are carried daily in the baggage cars.

We also ask you to figure out what per cent the Government of the United States pays for all this deadhead stuff that is carried. We also ask you to ascertain what proportion the express companies pay for this deadhead stuff.

The Public Service Commission can remedy these evils and secure from the railroads a promise and guarantee of better service. If you find they are entitled to an increase after these matters are remedied, then we, the United Commercial Travelers, will gladly abide by your decision.

Questioned by Chairman Atkinson,

Knapp could cite no case of illegal issuance or use of a pass.

Thomas R. Morrow, general solicitor of the Santa Fe, moved that the Knapp protest be stricken from the record. It is nothing but a lot of loosely made assertions, he said, unsupported by evidence. This was overruled by Chairman Atkinson, who said the protest would be considered in the disposition of the case.

85 Corn Growers have Entered Race.

The Corn Acre Yield Contest, conducted by the State Normal School, Cape Girardeau, closes June 1. Twenty-three counties are now represented, Stoddard and Franklin being tied for the greatest number of contestants. Reports from over the District show the corn to be in the best of condition. So far in the lower counties are already laid by. Everywhere the corn has had several cultivations and indications are good that the former high yield of 99 bushels on one acre will be broken.

The following contestant has entered from Iron County:

Ernest Funk, Annapolis.

Brewer.

Died—At his home in Annapolis, Tuesday, May 11th, 1915, about 3:20 A. M., John Brewer, aged 65 years.

The grief stricken wife and children have our sympathy with many prayers in their behalf in their darkest hours of sorrow and distress.

Mr. Brewer was loved by all who knew him and he had many warm friends, both young and old. He professed a hope in Christ forty-eight years ago and united with the General Baptist Church of which he was still a member.

His funeral services were conducted by Rev. John Alcorn at the church house in the presence of a very large congregation of relatives and sorrowing friends.

Our friend now sleeps in the Annapolis Cemetery to wait for the call and then he will stand in the congregation of righteous.

O we miss thee every hour,
Gone the smiles that were so charming,
To the land of purest day,
From all pain and cares set free.

We miss thee, Oh, so sadly
Since thou wast called above,
And those bright eyes closed forever,
In the cold and silent tomb.

Thou art blest and saved,
Loved one, to us so dear,
But thy spirit word we hear
Whispering back love to us in this.

Thou'st crossed death's cold stream,
Thou art immortal,
And with the Angels sing,
Thou art done with suffering,

Thou art wearing a crown
Where thou roamest is no night,
In the beautiful happy land.

The world is looking lonesome,
But all our griefs will go
Some day in perfect music,
When we leave all below.
